Meet Tallyrow FICTIONAL

The company, the people and the backlog you'll work with from start to finish.

THE COMPANY

about 40,000
paying businesses: freelancers and small businesses of 1 to 50 people

about 900,000
invoices sent through Tallyrow every month, on web and mobile

61%
of invoices paid by their due date: the number the CEO opens every Monday

Tallyrow is an invoicing and payments app. Its customers are designers, consultants, small agencies: anyone who sends an invoice and then waits. They don't hire Tallyrow to make invoices. They hire it to get paid on time. It operates in several countries.

THREE PRODUCT SQUADS · AND YOU

Get Paid
Payment link, reminders, late fees

Invoicing
Recurring invoices, multi-currency, client portal, receipt capture

Platform & Compliance
E-invoicing

You
The product manager who has just taken over quarterly planning for all three: one shared backlog, one quarter

THE PEOPLE AROUND THE TABLE

WHO	ROLE	WHAT THEY WANT, AND WHY
Maya	CEO	Smart reminders. She saw a competitor demo them and wants that story this quarter. Nobody has tested it yet.
Priya	Head of Support	A payment link inside every invoice. Her team answers the same ticket every day: "how do I pay you?"
Daniel	Head of Sales	Multi-currency. One large design agency is ready to sign if Tallyrow supports it.
Aisha	Compliance lead	E-invoicing. One market is making it mandatory from a fixed date; miss it and customers there can't invoice legally.
Tomás	Finance lead	Late fees added automatically. New revenue, and a quick way to annoy customers' own clients.
Customers	Feedback board	Recurring invoices: their most-requested item.
Design team		A client portal: their favourite.
User survey		Receipt capture is popular, though it sits next door to the job customers hire Tallyrow for.

THE QUARTER'S BACKLOG · IN NO PARTICULAR ORDER

#	ITEM	THE PITCH	ASKED FOR BY
1	Payment link	A "Pay now" link inside every invoice	Priya (Support); customers
2	Smart reminders	Reminders timed to when each client usually pays	Maya (CEO), after a competitor demo
3	Recurring invoices	Set a monthly retainer up once; it's invoiced automatically	Customers (top request)
4	E-invoicing compliance	Meet a regulator's mandate in one market by a fixed date	Aisha (Compliance)
5	Multi-currency	Invoice and get paid in other currencies	Daniel (Sales), for one big deal
6	Client portal	Clients see and pay all their invoices in one place	Design team
7	Late-fee automation	Add late fees to overdue invoices automatically	Tomás (Finance)
8	Receipt capture	Snap a photo of a receipt, log an expense	User survey

Eight good ideas. Room for about three.

Realistically, the three squads can finish about three of these this quarter. Every request has a sponsor, a reason, and somebody who will be disappointed. Deciding which three is the job, and whatever you choose, someone will escalate.

Tallyrow, its people and every number on this page are invented for teaching. Keep this page open as you work: every Tallyrow exercise starts from these facts. New facts, such as estimates, test results and the quarter's decisions, arrive in the lessons where you work them out.
